Program Description & Objectives
The Metropolitan Shoulder Symposium is an annual one-day event which brings together renowned regional and national shoulder experts to discuss current management of the athlete's shoulder. This year's Symposium will be hosted by Columbia, and will concentrate on the pathology. This year's Symposium will be hosted by Columbia, and will concentrate on the management of the athlete's shoulder. This course will enable orthopaedic surgeons, sports medicine specialists, physical therapists and allied health professionals to learn current, cutting-edge techniques and the keys to successful outcomes when managing patients with these injuries.

At the conclusion of this course, the participant should be able to:
- Distinguish the complex pathobiomechanics of the shoulder as it relates to injuries.
- Recognize the indications for both non-operative and operative management of these injuries, as well as the keys to successful outcomes.
- Identify pearls and pitfalls and cutting-edge techniques critical to managing both common and complex shoulder injuries.
